I found solace in confiding my frustrations and struggles to God, expressing my inability to tolerate the constant comparisons between Vinoth and myself. It deeply angered and irritated me, yet I felt constrained in expressing my anger openly to my friends. Both Sai and Prici seemed to actively highlight this comparison, intensifying my resentment towards Vinoth. Prici even shared her own thoughts, suggesting that Vinoth may be using me to gain proximity to our group of friends. The idea of anyone being equated with my cherished trio of friends was something I strongly rejected, further fueling my animosity towards Vinoth.

Compromised with friends…
